1992-1997

Thunderbird School of Global Management, Academic Program Director—European Campus and Faculty Member, Geneva, Switzerland and Glendale, Arizona, 1992-1997

In Glendale, I was Assistant Professor in the department of International Studies, teaching courses in European Politics and History and Global Environmental Politics. At the Geneva campus, where I spent the majority of my service, I was both faculty member and academic program director, directing their new campus.

Responsibilities:

- Led administration (organized course schedule, seminars, faculty orientation, faculty meetings, faculty hiring and relocation, staff meetings, budgetary planning, board meetings, dignitary visits).
- Created a new program for student externships (scholarships) at international governmental, non-governmental organizations, and the corporate sectors. Examples include the UN, WTO, International Red Cross, Citibank, Nestle, and Renault.
- Initiated research projects in ecological security, sustainable development, and global regime theory (ozone layer depletion, oceans policy, climate change).
- Managed five full-time and seven part-time faculty, and three full-time administrative staff members.
- Began a new program in international organizational theory and practice (called Winterim).
- Advised graduate students (student course plans, housing, travel, troubleshooting).
- Handled communications (press relations, organized campus tours).
- Initiated a computer lab with internet and email access for students and faculty.
- Created a community partnership with the European Union in Brussels for student internships and coursework.
- Initiated a collaborative learning program with CERN, the European Organization for Nuclear Research, in Geneva as part of our organizational leadership institute.
- Taught graduate level courses in European Politics and Global Environmental Issues.
- Initiated a consortium of graduate schools in international management.
